Russia: 1900 to the Bolshevik Revolution

Background

Karl Marx predicted that revolution would happen in a fully industrialized nation.

Great Britain and Germany were marked for a worker's revolution. These countries suffered from the hugely unequal class system of early capitalism.

They contained all the necessary ingredients for revolution, but the revolution never happened. Great Britain and Germany introduced progressive reforms, and generally speaking, class conflict remained non-violent.

The revolution instead happened in a non-industrialized nation that verged on feudalism, Russia.

Why?

Assignment

At the end of this task, you should be an expert on the following topics . . .

A) Development of the Revolutionary Movement (Pg. 25 – 26)

B) Three Russian Problems (Pg. 26 – 27)

C) Revolution of 1905 / October Manifesto / Fundamental Laws (Pg. 27 – 29)

D) Impact of WWI (Pg. 29 – 30)

E) March 1917 Revolution & Provisional Government (Pg. 30 – 33)

F) Bolshevik Revolution (Pg. 33)

Topic	Details

Student Workbook Pg. 25 – 33